

I am a very loyal and happy XM subscriber. I was even more happy with the service when they offered local weather and traffic. The service is very convenient. The traffic reports and weather recycle every 5 mins or so, this way you do not have to wait through endless commercials and news to get traffic. I think the NAB is wrong in trying to squash this technology. If they are afraid of losing listeners they should not be. They lost me last year when I purchased XM and that was before they offered local content. The basis for local content while exciting was not the reason I initially bought XM.

I would ask the FCC to allow XM to provide the superior service that myself and millions of others enjoy everyday.

Respectfully submitted,

William H. Henderson